PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Hear ye! Hear ye! At the April General Meeting we will vote on a proposed dues increase. If adopted, the increase will raise dues from $12 to $15 for individuals. Family memberships would change from $17 to $20. All other memberships would also increase by $3. The new dues rate would take effect immediately. This is the first dues increase we have entertained since RPCVs of WI/Madison was founded in 1981. I proposed the increase because we have been running on an awfully tight budget the past few years. Also, the proposed rates match those set by National Council and most other groups.

Submit your calendar giveaway donation requests now! All requests must be received by Gordon Malaise by Thursday, April 16. The calendar giveaway will occur at the May General Meeting. For details, call Deb Stapleton, 244-8609, or see last month's newsletter.

The camping trip will not be held the first weekend in June because it would interfere with our esteemed vice president's wedding. At the March General Meeting we chose the second weekend in June as our first alternative, with the last weekend in May as the next best choice. However, Therese, our campout organizer, will be out of state June 12-14, and it doesn't seem fair to expect her to do all the planning without joining in the fun, so we're going with our next best choice, May 29-31.

Having a baby? Getting married? Marking your 40th birthday with a tattoo? Sharon Lewandowski has volunteered to report these events and more in our newsletter. If you have something to share, call Sharon at 241-2392. Thanks, Sharon, for your help.

It's time to start planning for the National Conference in Fayetteville, Arkansas, July 9-12. If anyone is interested in serving as the group liaison, please contact me. I've received the first mailing regarding the conference, and I must admit, I'm excited! Fayetteville is surrounded by parks, lakes, and civil war battle grounds. The conference planners seem to be leaving plenty of time in the schedule for hiking, spelunking, craft shopping, etc. The Fayetteville conference promises to be easy-going with lots of opportunities to catch up with old friends, make new friends, and reflect on our Peace Corps experience. I need to start getting a preliminary count of how many people are interested in attending, so please contact me if you think you might mosey on down to Arkansas. We're not planning on booking an hotel or holding any social events, since people seem to prefer connecting with their countries of service, but if there's interest in doing one of the above, I'd be happy to provide the necessary information. If you prefer to make your own lodging arrangements, I have a list of places to stay. The official conference travel agency is Shiloh Travel. They can be reached toll free by calling 1-800-292-9225.

A Summer of Theater, Food and Fun

On Thursday, July 216, and 30, skippeth–out–of–work early and join us for an evening of Shakespeare or Wilder at the American Players Theater in Spring Green, Wisconsin. The festivities begin at 5 p.m. when you toss the sizzle of your choice on one of the theater’s gas grills. If you don’t want to bring your own food, you may order one of four gourmet picnic dinners prepared by Ovens of Brittany. While feasting, don’t be surprised if you encounter Madame Zigurat, a gypsy fortuneteller, and her band of troubadours and fantastic fools. You may also find yourself in the company of fire-eaters, puppeteers, wandering minstrels, clowns and storytellers. Then, take a leisurely stroll through the open prairie before settling into your seat in the outdoor amphi theatre for the 7:30 p.m. performance.

We’ll pack our picnic baskets once more on Sunday, August 16, (canoeers beware!) and gather at the APT for "A Midsummer Night’s Dream." The show begins at 6:00 p.m., but make sure to arrive plenty early to enjoy the "Bard’s Barbecue," complete with wandering minstrels, fire-eaters, puppeteers, storytellers, jugglers, clowns, and fantastic fools.

Order your tickets now and save 25% on shows and 20% on meals. But hurry—offer ends April 6! Sorry, no refunds.

24 were there, all well-behaved. As we introduced ourselves, we each told a tale of religious behaviour from our countries. The scribe was late (he had a note from his professor), and didn’t catch the juiciest ones. But there’re several, from the back of the shelf: 1) Nepal: all the shamanism anthropologists decided to crash the national witches’ convention near Kathmandu. (These were real witches, mind you, the kind that intimidate monsters.) They thought the anthropologists very rude, showing up with no invitations, improperly dressed, and loaded down with movie cameras. So they summoned an enormous but quite localized thunderstorm that sluiced out the doctors; the witches stayed dry as can be, and resumed work. (I was told this by an anthropologist who was there, and he’s published stuff with footnotes, so it must be true.)

2) Did you know the Blessed Virgin Mary has appeared, here in Wisconsin? Yep; it’s not just something for Portuguese goatherds and Yugoslav peasants. Up in Necedah, on the Wisconsin River. There’s a whole series of grottoes (littered with crutches), and the restored farmhouse where the visionary lived, and a book for sale containing transcripts of all the Virgin’s words. (About 17 years of them.) Some places make her more ghoulish than others. it seems; Necedah must be special. The book is full of fulminations against communism, abortion, and other misbehaviors. Another argument against tenure; a probationary candidate would never talk that way.

3) Sharon remembers a priest who performed the RC ritual of sprinkling the congregation with holy water; not with the usual implement (an aspergillum) but with a water pistol. “How Filipino,” all the Phil. vols said.

Money: we have $3610 in our Operating account: 2711 Global Ed, 894 checking, 5 saving.

Reports on the Past:
Freeze For Food: no Deb, thus no report on the take.

The Feb. Retreat. It was fun, but only a few were there for Friday night, and there was no snow, and our hexagram for the coming year is pretty ominous. (Stagnation, changing to Conflict. Buck was agast; no one else took it seriously.) The QUESTION was: should we change our retreat style? (A different season, place, number of nights...?) We decided these: We need this winter event, and we need it to plan our year. So, do it next year, same time, same place. Arrange for more snow, and magic more people to come (“like the old days—when we also partied until 2.”) If not enough have registered for Friday, drop that night, and notify the camp.

The baby shower for Barb and Henry Nehls-Lowe was attended, and money raised for a baby car seat. If you want to contribute, call Nancy.

Carneval in Milwaukee: Don was there, and enjoyed himself. The Milw. group has a much more ethnically mixed group than we do, which he likes. (“What Wisconsin needs is more West African dairy farmers.”) About 200 people were there, at $10 per. We should have more interaction with Milwaukee, they’re fun, and close. And their dances are better.

The Calendar: Don has already put his computer to work, sending out a letter (that we all in general, and the calendar core in more detail) approved. He’s so tickled to have his own energy slave. (It says “Yessir!” when he boots up.) This letter is to all the RPCV groups, urging them to pre-order calendars, so we can sharpen our projections, and better estimate how many to order printed. He’s got an offer they’d better not refuse: If a group pre-orders (a minimum number) the $4 price will hold good for all subsequent bulk orders for the rest of the year. And the group can include its own advertising for its particular products (coffee mugs, t-shirts, feed bags) in the mailings we have to do anyway. We’d all share costs, and pool customer lists, and all help each other. (There are provisions for tracking the effectiveness of this all, and for a group pulling its own list out of the pool if dissatisfied, and other neat stuff that database mavins find easy.) Don is just a font of nifty ideas.

92 Calendar Monies: We’ve taken in or have coming about $17,000. All bills are paid, match. We have to set much of this aside for next year’s expenses, of course. Don did not have numbers projected for the 93 Cal’s printing costs (we’ll print more this year), but he figures we should certainly be able to give away $3000 in one crack at our May meeting. (We’ve already donated $1000 from the 92 profits.)
So the Calendar Profits Giveaway (decorous) Orgy will be at the May meeting. If you have a recommendation, it must be in the April Newsletter. Deadline is about the 12th; call the new Editor, Gordon, 255-3261(h.). Each recommendation must be sponsored by a current member.

The final Slide Pick for the 93 Calendar was last week, with about 10 present, and an attentive Amanda. Juicy pics, with goodies left for consideration next year. Countries for 93 are: Guinea, Senegal, Nepal, Ecuador, Philippines, Benin, Bolivia, Sierra Leone, Lesotho, Guatemala, Thailand, and a country where women weave (Tibet?). Once again, the men are lounging in doorways, modeling their overalls, while the women pull buses out of the ditch.

We need slides for 94! Sic: we never again want to be so pushed for time again. (The printing schedule is Conference-driven, and the Fayetteville conference is early this year.) So send us your slides now. To Henry NL.

We’ll have leftover 92 Cal.s, about 1200. If you have any worthy recipients (schools, etc.) who will actually use them well, talk to Don.

Don also wants ideas on getting the Cals overseas, into the hands of serving PCVs. Preferably by selling them. For dollars.

Global Ed.: (Carolina): the Video is done, but not well enough (our pro turned out to be a temperamental artist, after all. That pink beret was a warning sign we should have heeded.) It’s being tuned up. Brochures are out, and orders are coming in. The Guide is still in process, but will be good when it’s done.

501.c.3 (tax exempt status): Buck and Gordon did their part, and Kevin and Gordon need to do theirs (numbers for the past year). Then all the papers can go in.

The Budding Midwest Region RPCV association: (Mike McG): it’s coming along. St Louis is hosting a gathering of us on April 4-5: a sort of regional conference, in fact. There, folks will prepare for the Nat’l Conference in Fayetteville. Wanna go? Talk to Nancy or Don. And you’ll get to see St. Louis with native guides.

Upcoming Parties: (including some you’ve already missed.)

Baron (von) Bliss Day: March 7. Dave Wakeley’s. Was fine, and lasted long enough. Buck and Gordon walked home about 1:00, and no one hooded at Gordon’s aronng; cross-dressing is now so common on Willy St, you see.

Earl’s 40th Birthday Party. Sat 28 March. Cardinal, from 6pm. No Presents. And you can see his new tattoo.

Parents Brunch: Sun, April 5. At Cuna. Details elsewhere. Do come: we all have a good time, and grownups listen to us, for once—this is very refreshing. There’ll be speakers from Guatemala, Thailand, and Liberia.

Summer Camping Trip: weekend of June 12. We discussed another place, because of last year’s experience with the Louts from Chicago. But the Ukrainian couple made up for it, and everything else was dandy. (Though the coons are mighty pushy, late at night.) We’ll invite Milwaukee; they’ll protect us (they all have fishing waders). Teresa will arrange everything.

July Potluck: will be the last week in June, either at Donna Shalala’s or at Mary Grace’s. Union South is off limits to us for the summer, says Walt, so we should plan accordingly for June—August.

Canoe trip: August 15-16. We’ll do another piece of the Wisconsin, starting where we left off last year. Our aim is to have explored the entire stretch to the Mississippi in another 3 years. Then we can come back and trap furs in earnest.

Cardinal Bar benefit: Earl will help, but needs a boss. The theme will be Ethiopia: the food is delicious (and we have tasty recipes), and the Tigre region (and the Horn of Africa generally) needs the help. We need a trustworthy organization to receive the monies we collect. Tell Earl 257-7880.

Newsletter: Thorn Tree should be revived (again). This is our message board. (Eg, you can anonymously) send in “88 Porche, excellent condition, $300 or best offer. Gordon, 255-3261.” Then you can ask Gordon why his phone is always tied up.) We asked for a volunteer Thornie, to coordinate. Sharon said sure. Send your stuff to Sharon Lewandowski, 8 Sherman Terrace #4, Madison 53704.

The 93 National Conference: all groups received a letter fr. the NC, asking who is interested in hosting it. No one wants to, yet. (Surprise.) But we’ve already done one, and should sit on our hands. It is a good organizing stimulus for a group, and we heartily recommend it.
For the 32 Nat’l Conference in Fayetteville (weekend of July 11): we need a Conference Liaison. We are already talking about renting a bus to carry everyone from the Upper Midwest down together (keep the bad apples in one barrel). We do need a contact person for dealing with Fayetteville, though. Don can’t do it, nor can Nancy: their other chores are too demanding. Will someone volunteer? It’s not too onerous. Call Nancy.

Operating Monies: Nancy pointed out that our dues of $12/yr don’t leave enough slack after the newsletter’s paid for. And we want to be able to do small spontaneous things, like buy something cheery for one of us in the hospital. She proposed that some of the Cal profits go into our operating fund. This was stoutly resisted, except for items that are directly related to Global Ed work or charitable work. (E.g., a slide projector.) However, we were agreeable to raising our dues to $15/yr. (They’ve been $12 since our incorporation.) This will bring in an extra $450/yr, which is enough. We’ll discuss this at another meeting, and vote.

However, it would be good to have a source of income for operating expenses. Formerly, we had a contract w/ PC/Minn to give talks to salivary groups the campus recruiter didn’t reach. (Business folk, MATC people, local minority groups, bikers—in demand for mechanics work, and tourism—etc.) We were paid $99 per, for up to $1000/yr. Very nice. We need something like that, again. Think about this, all of us.

Child Survival Campaign: Bush vetoed the foreign aid bill. This stops a number of programs dead in their tracks, including ones dealing with child survival. Please write to David Obey, House of Reps., urging him to reconsider, and keep these programs to be supported, with no chilly-shalying. If irascible enough, you might write the Pres., as well.

Dave Zaken is briefly back in town, from PC/Guatemala! (He fell out of a tree, and was shopping for a new hip.)

That’s all.

Buck.

CALENDAR REPORT
MARCH 10, 1992

This is a report on the state of the Calendar Project as of 3/10/92. The situation changes daily but the figures below represent the situation as of today. We printed 8000 Calendars over this sales year. This is how they have been disbursed up to now.

Paid Sales 5145
Accounts Receivable 365
Consignment 324
Dev. Ed. Project 150
Royalties 50
Advertising 225
Contributions 541
Stock on Hand 1200

TOTAL 8000

We now have $14865.45 on hand in savings and checking. We have $1806.65 in accounts receivable. Figuring the 324 consignment Calendars at $3.00 each means we should realize $972.00. Based on these figures, our assets at this time total $17644.10.

Our only outstanding liability is the $1702.89 loan made to Don Sauer for computer equipment. This disbursement has not yet been paid. There are no outstanding bills.

We have given a total of $935.00 to various charitable efforts to date. I suggest we give at least $2000.00 to various additional charitable efforts. If we were to do this the state of affairs would look like this:

Assets $17,644.10
Liabilities $1,702.89

Bal. before Cont. $15,941.21
Proposed Cont. $2,000.00

BALANCE $13,941.21

Total given to date $935
Proposed Contribution $2000

TOTAL $2935

I wish to thank all those who sold Calendars among friends, relatives and I would like to especially thank John Click for his efforts among the merchants of Madison. I also wish to apologize to Margaret Pledler and June Luett, two members of our group from Boscobel and Neenah respectively. They were unjustly dunned by me recently, Mea Culpa, Mea Culpa, Mea Maxima Culpa.

Don Sauer
The ‘gentle wholeness’ of home

By Elise Sprunt Sheffield  RPCV, Lesotho 1985-87

A year ago, with stamp-choked passport and two Ivy diplomas, I came home to rural Virginia – not to visit, but to stay. The cows kept on grazing, the dogs continued to loll about the porch, and local folks greeted my return as if it were a natural thing.

But coming home wasn’t part of my original plan. The Blue Ridge Mountains may be beautiful, but years in their shadows had left me aching for wider horizons. Hence Brown, and all that followed: short-term service projects across the nation, and work abroad. By the time I joined the Peace Corps in 1985, Africa was but the latest port-of-call in my life of moving on.

Sent to the tiny mountain kingdom of Lesotho in southern Africa to teach high school, I began a two-year residence in the traditional village of Ha Poli (meaning “Home of the Goats”), a hilltop cluster of sixty compounds, innumerable animals, and one Catholic mission. Bound by 10,000-foot ridges, Ha Poli is cut off from much of Western development. Vehicles are rare; electricity and telephone non-existent. Mail takes weeks.

As the only white person in the village, I settled into my hut with great anticipation. Giddy with culture, only slowly did I come to realize the great irony at the heart of my foreign assignment. I began to see that all my expansive notions of the exotic were to be lived, actually, in the tight confines of a single goat village. So I committed myself to the ordinary. Like my Basotho neighbors, I hauled water, hung laundry, gossiped. I celebrated birth, marked death, humored drunks, deferred proposals, tangled with kids. I borrowed eggs, loaned flour, dug a garden, prayed for rain. I waited.

And then it happened. The very qualities I had rejected in rural life returned to me with an intensity that was no longer suffocating, but rather deeply sustaining. In the parameter of Ha Poli’s particularity, I discovered community; in neighborly commitments, great freedom; in the humdrum of our days together, gentle wholeness. The paradox stunned me: how could such abundant living spring from so limited a life?

Many of my Brown-inspired assumptions about my life fell away. The aspiration to stand out gave way to a groping desire to join in – to find community, get stuck, stay. By freeing us from past reference points and claims, by setting us on individual paths of knowledge and responsibility, the university, I think, calls us to be a people on the move, in life and work. But deep in Africa, I heard a different call.

Which is why, seven years after graduating from Brown, and one year after a master’s degree from Harvard, the only “track” I find myself on is the dirt road winding past my home in western Virginia.

In search of community, my husband, Eric, and I have returned not only to these familiar hills and hollows, but to the very house in which I was raised. By choice, we live with my parents. While sanity requires that the Sprunts and the Sheffield run separate households, we know ourselves at the same time to be caught up in a single dance, needing each other in complementary, mutually necessary ways. So far, it works.

I am amazed, and greatly relieved. As one who takes pride in her self-sufficiency, I regarded coming home to be as perilous as going to Africa. But a year after our leap, it feels good to be home. It feels very good, also, to have had a choice. Africa’s lessons were taught to me by people who, for the most part, can’t choose. Poverty keeps the rural Basotho close to the land and to each other, and poverty is far different from the path of simplicity I have chosen.

As woodworker and teacher, respectively, Eric and I believe we can find a niche here on RFD One. But it has been a humbling year. I’ve discovered that getting a job in the public schools is harder than getting into Brown. So I make do: some part-time teaching, a little substituting, even waitressing at the local burger place. Commitment to place first, and job second, has given me the patience to wait and the freedom to try new things.

The job market may be frustrating, but joining the community in other ways has been a revelation. Suddenly I find myself speaking up at public hearings, writing letters to the editor, ranting about unregulated growth, coal-fired plants, school conditions… small things, mostly, but important to the present and future life of this place and its people.

Never an activist at Brown, I am surprised by these initiatives, grateful for the clarity of vision and strength of purpose this new rootedness seems to bring.

Sometimes when I think of my past wanderings, all this born-again parochialism makes me laugh. When, at eighteen, I tossed myself into the sea of adventure, little did I intend, at thirty, to return with the tide. And yet, washed up, I know this is the place I both need and want to be.

“Motho ke motho ka batho ba ba hang,” say the Basotho; “one is human only by, with, and through others.” I hold these words before me like a lantern. I doubt I’ll ever recreate the feeling of wholeness I found in Ha Poli; our cultures are just too different. Nevertheless, as an American with a taste of Africa as rich and full as honey on my tongue, I try.

Elise Sprunt Sheffield lives with her husband and parents in Buena Vista, Virginia.
